

The sermon started with Jesus crying at his friend's tomb. What does it do for you to think that God might actually feel grief over the pain in the world?

Why is it important that God doesn't ignore a certain type of sin?

The sermon made a distinction between wanting their punishment and welcoming your refinement. Honestly, where do you spend more of your attention?

The refiner's fire isn't a quick or comfortable process. Where in your life do you sense God doing slow, uncomfortable work right now?

What do you think we can learn about the categories of sin that God describes in 3:5?
