

Sermon Notes

Acts 15:36-41 | October 12th

Outline

When things are unresolved we see our vulnerability

When things are unresolved we grieve with others

When things are unresolved we stay alert

When things are unresolved we hope for a good ending

Passages in Today's Sermon

Revelation 21:3, Proverbs 14:10, Matthew 5:23-24

Why is it so easy to separate rather than to find a solution?

How can grieving with others bring healing even when the conflict itself isn't fixed?

Have you ever had a relationship that you took for granted? What should people do to make sure they don't take important relationships for granted?

What are some warning signs that you might be avoiding a needed conversation or ignoring tension?

How does knowing that anyone can end up in conflict give us greater tenderness towards people who are in the middle of relational conflict?

In Acts 15 the new churches needed to be strengthened, do you think our church needs to be strengthened? What part could you play in that work?

How do we help people process the reality that some things will be painful for the rest of their life?
